

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A fault monitor for the load portion of an electrical circuit may be connected to an existing circuit by a single connection, and may detect flaws within the load portion of the circuit through the detection of changes in voltage through a resistor, caused by changes in current flow due to changing resistance within the load portion of the circuit.

5